

Meeting Notes - Andrew Park, Esther Hong

Topic - Riot Games Introduction Website

Audience for the Website

People who are interested in playing Riot games, or people who are already playing Riot games, or general gamers who just like seeing info of different games

Color Choice

What colors would fit the best for this website?

- 2 extremely different directions that we can take
  - Have the black background color with little highlight on the texts that are being shown on page
  - Have a very vibrant selection of colors that will represent each gaming page and a main page with the colors of riot games (red with white) on the main
  - Of course, there could be more directions

Contents/Sources for the Content

- Use the sources from Wikipedia and Fandom ← enough materials and information about the game
- Wikipedia URL: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Riot\_Games
- Fandom URL: https://leagueoflegends.fandom.com/wiki/Riot\_Games (this one specifically says league of legends, but clicking on the Riot games gives more information for the other one)

Specific Page Design/ Content Organization

- Main page will have 3 pages that you can lead to in the other pages
  - Games (currently, there is 5 different games that Riot has)
    - League of Legends
    - Valorant
    - Teamfight Tactics (TFT)
    - Legends of Runterra
    - 2XKO
    - Each section will have its identification (what game it is), how to play, and if we have time to add those things, some main characters within the game.
  - Upcoming Games/ Updates
    - If there is any upcoming games/beta testing of upcoming games, that information will be on this page

Design Direction

- Try to make all the designs smooth and organic rather than rigid (that is good for whatever cite)
- More to look on the official riot games site → <https://www.riotgames.com/en>